Nonie Belarmino is currently a business owner of IDance Studio in Carson, California. He is a licensed Zumba and ballroom enthusiast. He is an instructor dealing with different personalities and professionals who would like to maintain good health through exercise and dancing.

Together with his Zumba family, his objective is to help Filipinos with hidden talents to achieve their dreams through fundraising. Among them were Michael Martinez, the first Filipino who represented the Philippines through his competition in the Olympics in figure skating. The Junior New System, ages 18 to 25, come from poor families from Manila, who made their chance to join the America's Got Talent after winning their Championship Title from WCOPA in Long Beach. They may not win the top finals but made a history in the United States. Proud to be Filipinos! Nonie and his family and friends supported them for more than one year.

At present, he is a board of director of friends of FAPCCA and an outstanding member of the Filipino American Chamber of Commerce of SouthBay in Carson, doing a lot of community neighborhood projects. He is a supporter of City of Carson's community projects, especially during Carson's annual Philippine Independence celebration.

Nonie was the Producer of the Noli Me Tangere in Performing Arts in Cerritos. He was awarded by different local organizations as Producer of the year, among other award titles, because of his unselfish support.

Before he became an emigrant to the United States, he was an accountant in one of the Real Estates companies in the Philippines. He's a Bachelor of Science in Accountancy graduated from Olivares College.
